To Whom It May Concern,

I am pleased to write a letter of recommendation for Ms. Andrea Kuchta, who I have worked alongside as a third grade teacher. She has been a third grade teacher for the last two years and has made a difference in the life of each student that has entered her classroom.

During her first year of teaching, she was faced with many challenges in her diverse classroom. While balancing her first year of teaching and a growing, diverse classroom, Andrea remained positive and continued to provide her students with a quality, hands-on education.

She is organized and well-prepared for each school day. Andrea sets high learning standards and expectations for her students.

Andrea goes above and beyond for each lesson she plans. She is passionate about hands-on learning and meeting the individual and unique needs of each student. She differentiates each lesson and ensures that her students are able to access the content in a way that best suits them.

Andrea establishes positive relationships with her students, colleagues and administrators. She has excellent written and verbal communication skills. She collaborates frequently with her colleagues and administrators. She plans weekly with her grade level team and meets with the principal each week to discuss grade level concerns.

Her passion for teaching and positive attitude make her an asset to any school district she joins.

Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Jenna George
M. Ed.
